Explanatory document for discussion purposes only

The diagram below was prepared to assist discussing some of the major differences between the claims and the Doshi reference. It is in no way intended to replace or interpret the claims. It also does not form any admission as to the content or import of the Doshi reference.

Further distinctions over Doshi include:

- Client can access the definition of the application control commands over the network
- Client can receive the instruction set for the client-side service over the network